

Jaynae D. Laine is a native of Lexington, Kentucky. She is a graduate of Bryan Station Senior High, Lexington, KY. After graduation, Ms. Laine continued her quest for knowledge at Wittenberg University, Springfield, OH and obtained a Bachelor of Arts in Communications. Her desire to enhance her skills and touch the lives of young people led her to the University of Kentucky where she received her teaching certificate and began her teaching career in the Fayette County Public School System.

She was a primary teacher for eight years before moving into administration and holding a position as a Professional Staff Assistant for one year. Ms. Laine has her Masters in Elementary Education from Georgetown College, Georgetown, KY and a Level I principal certification from Western Kentucky University, Bowling Green, KY. She is currently completing the Level II portion of the principal certification at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, KY. She is employed by the Kentucky Department of Education and serves as a program consultant where her work focuses around the achievement gap, school culture and climate, Title 1, Part A and paraeducators.

Ms. Laine is also one of the co-directors for the Black Males Working Academy (BMW) which is a partnership between First Bracktown Inc. and the Fayette County Public School System that focuses on helping African American males in middle and high school demonstrate their academic excellence. Her commitment to closing the achievement gap keeps her focused on the most current research on instructional strategies that meet the needs of all students.
